Thinking Out Loud

(By H. M. L.)

The Chamber of Commerce will meet tomorrow (Tuesday) evening to elect officers for the year. It is important to this rapidly growing community that every one of the ninety odd members attend this meeting and participate in it. While the functions of the chamber in unifying public sentiment, so that improvements of such notable value as the airport, certain roads, and observance of holidays have well justified its existence, few of the members realize that in its every day function as an information bureau to investors, home seekers and particularly those who seek mining property in this vicinity, the chamber is invaluable. Scores of letters, scores of personal inquiries are answered by the secretary each month.

In view of the great advance the community has made during the past two years, a new prospectus is urgently needed to send out along with specific information to those who write to the chamber for advice. That is one thing that will require money. Fourth of July is coming, when this city will have its turn at being host to the rest of the county. There should be a fund provided to make this an outstanding event.

Whenever the chamber fails to measure up to its responsibilieies anyone at any all acquainted with its affairs will know that lack of money is the chief reason for the failure. It has been suggested that the membership be classified in accordance with its abilities to contribute greater or smaller monthly individual dues. Small businesses now pay exactly the same amount as large businesses. The latter are of course in a position to reap greater advantage from chamber activities than the smaller firms. A classification of the membership would tend to equalize the burden.

There are a number of newcomers in Nevada City who should be immediately invited to join the chamber, the engine that works for the benefit of all of us. They should be urged to take part in those civic activities which make Nevada City a better place to reside and rear families, which enlist the aid of other organizations to give us better roads, cheaper freight rates, faster transport, and in course of time help us to raise the standards of business and every day living.

The Nevada City Chamber of Commerce invites and needs you. Come out to the meeting tomorrow night, and join.

They think in Florida it's mountains they lack, to make that state another California, and some wag has suggested that they build a mountain out of materials taken from the ship canal that the New Deal proposes to plow across the Florida peninsula. But it would never equal glorious Mt. Whitney, nor be as awe inspiring as Pyramid Peak or Mt. Shasta. But why should any state try to be like another state? Florida is a grand country. If we had to choose another state to live in, it would be Florida with its lanquorous climate and prodigious fertility of soil. But California, we say it without boasting for God made it, has everything. Height or depth, warm or cool weather, variety of natural beauty, in broad expanse of sea or towering mountains, California has them all.

When one thinks of the matter candidly, nothing but admiration for the wisdom of the founders of this country can be expressed. For it was because of their insistence on state rights that a decentralized government, with the states carrying on as best suited their people, was organized. By this means there has been built up a vast deal of state pride, state patriotism it might be called. The independence of cities has also promoted a metropolitan pride. Throughout the land then has developed a rivalry among states and among cities to be first in many of the good things in life. This is a condition which would probably not have existed had the founders of the republic been able, or deemed it wise, to establish a strong centralized government. The rivalry of states to enhance their natural advantages, to improve living conditions for their peoples, has been a large factor in making this great land of ours first among the nations of the world.

This strong feeling for the state, in which one lives and earns a living, multiplied 48 times, is a constant brake upon headlong departure on the part of the administration in Washington from the principles set forth in the Constitution. State governments vary. Some are better, some are worse, but each state is a governmental laboratory testing out methods of taxtion, methods of supporting and conducting schools, methods of agriculture, systems of taxation. One state sets up a mark for others to shoot at. It is a healthy condition, a condition of flux rather than a static condition. The wide discussion of the New Deal throughout the land today is salutary. A strong centralized government would set up averages, and averages are dangerous.

California produced 85 per cent of the country's grapes in 1933.

ALLEGED ROBBERS ARE ARRAIGNED

Sheriff Carl Tobiassen and his brother Deputy Sheriff Theodore Tobiassen, returned Saturday from Wallace, Idaho, with two prisoners, accused of robbery. The two are Andy G. Hooper and Cecil Kaedle, who, according to the complaint filed by Theodore Tobiassen, slugged him and robbed him of his wallet containing $30, while he was inspecting, in his official capacity, the Gold Nugget Inn. Through their car they were traced to Wallace, Idaho, where they were arrested, and extradited.

They were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Walter Mobley this afternoon and the time set for their preliminary hearing is Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. W. E. Wright will defend the two, and Vernon Stoll, district attorney, will prosecute.

TO SLUICE 30,000 YARDS OF GRAVEL

A group of miners on the South Yuba river are preparing to sulice gravel in a 40 foot diversion dam that has made satisfactory sampling tests. This is something new in this section and will be watched with interest. One of the men said miners have been working the river for over 50 years and return each year to make a living from sniping gold. The four men are Messrs. H. Kenney, H. C. Carter, L. M. White and David Davies.

The dam is located about one and one half miles north of the old toll bridge on the South Yuba and the men estimate that there are about 30,000 yards of gravel in the deposit. All machinery has to be carried in on the men's backs over a good trail. A pump is used to keep the gravel pit clear of water. The latest equipment is a three horse power engine which will be taken apart and carried down the trail. One of the larger pieces will weigh about 125 pounds.

CCC BOYS HUNT SNIPE AT CAMPTONVILLE

CAMPTONVILLE, March 9.—A number of local people took the Missouri CCC camp boys on a big snipe hunt Thursday evening, in the vicinity of the local airport site. Three of the boys were placed on a stand while the others made the drive to round the birds up. Not quite as good catch was made as was expected due to the bright moonlight night, and also because the boys were strange in the country. Carl Nickols made the biggest catch, one got away from Clement Clubb, and he being stationed near the old Chinese cemetery, became frightened and left his post too soon, Howard Wildman was stationed in a good place but due to hard day's work and the balmy moonlight, he went to sleep. Jerry Pauline, camp cook had the kettles steaming, and after some of the other boys inspected the catches in the sacks, the affair was considered a successful event.

After the hunt the party went to the Masonic Hall where two hours of dancing was enjoyed. A difficult situation presented itself however, the Missourians can not dance the late dances popular in the west and the natives can not dance the square dances. The westerners, however, were game to learn the square dances, and with Pop Miller at the guitar and Paul Nelson with the French harp and Rus Reed as caller an atmosphere of many years ago was brought back.

RILEY URGES TAX PAYERS TO CUT STATE EXPENSES

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—"Many agencies of government can be eliminated and others substantially curtailed without impairing the well-being of the people as a whole" declared Ray L. Riley, state controller of California, addressing taxpayers from all parts of the state in attendance at the Tenth Annual Meeting of California Taxpayers' association. "Democracy will fail in its entirety unless the people can find a way to curb the appetite for governmental extravagance and unnecessary public functions," he stated. "Today we are actually expending more dollars for government than we did five years ago, even though our capacity to pay has been tremendously curtailed. Not one single agency of government that existed five years age has retired from the field of operations; on the contrary many new agencies have been created, necessitating additional revenues and new taxes. The people of California contribute one billion dollars anually for governmental agencies, local, state and federal. What we need, manifestly, is a major operation, but there is little likelihood of doing more than applying a poultice."

Presiding over the meeting, A. C. Hardison, of Santa Paula, president of the taxpayers' association, bespoke the wholehearted support of the people of California to the effort to reduce taxes in the state.

"California needs a nonpolitical state police if it is to be of any avail in its war with crime, incorporated," declared Karl Detzer, author, lecturer and organizer of the Michigan state police. "If the state police is not divorced from politics, it will be worse than none at all. Michigan, with a state police force of 215 men, doing general police work, costs the taxpayers of Michigan $605,000 a year, as against the $2,196,000 which the highway patrol costs California to enforce traffic laws. The Michigan state police do a very good job of traffic enforcement as well," he asserted.

STATE OFFICIAL WILL SPEAK AT CIVIC CLUB

At their meeting this evening the Woman's Civic Club will have as a guest speaker Mrs. Frederick Schwartz of Monrovia, who is state chairman of crafts, industrial and school arts. Besides needlework other crafts and arts are to be discussed. It Is Simple As Greed

(Contributed)

Why, people in all lands are asking—why is the world plunging toward inevitable war when no one, save a few professional sabre rattlers, really wants to fight?

International relations are replete with bewildering complexities, but the whole situation can be reduced to simple terms that permit understanding even by him who does not comprehend all the nicieties of intrigue between nations.

It is as simple as greed, as fundamental as the will to survive. The "have nots" among world powers feel they must acquire some of what the "haves" possess in order to maintain their status as world powers; and the "haves" are unwilling to part with anything.

Six nations, including Britain, Russia, France and the United States, either own or hold a mortgage on two thirds of the earth. Japan, Italy and Germany are the "have nots." Germany, with seventy million people, is confined to an area just a shade larger than California; Japan with the same number has even less land; and Italy, with 42 millions, is smaller than the state of New Mexico.

So it is Germany, Italy and Japan that are stirring up all the trouble. The status quo does not suit them, and they cannot be sincere in any agreement to maintain it. Not all the people of these countries, mind you, but "the state," to which individuals are subordinate.

It is true these "have nots" could survive, perhaps even thrive, under the status quo by importing those vital raw materials they lack. It is true also that if they had extensive colonies, no great proportions of their peoples would leave to colonize.

But wider markets, and self sufficiency in war or peace they feel they must have. Why? It is simply that nations, especially those which have been great, suffer intensely at the thought of losing power, respect and prestige among other nations.

LEGION TO AID PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEEK PROGRAM

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—The 532 posts of the American Legion in California were called on today by Department Commander Dan W. Emmett to enlist their respective memberships in a "vigorous campaign" of cooperation in the seventeenth annual observance of Public Schools Week, beginning April 27.

"Public Schools Week as observed annually in California has become one of the most important programs of our citizens," said the State Commander.

His proclamation to the Legion, made public here today, is:

"The American Legion, since its birth, has realized the absolute importance and influence of our public schools. Far too many of our comrades of the World War were handicapped seriously because of their previous lack of educational opportunity

"Their inability to read or understand properly, orders issued at critical moments, often times resulted in unnecessary loss of life or danger to their fellow men — a grevious handicap in time of peace as well as in the time of national emergency.

"To protect our schools and to insure an improved welfare of our country's future citizens has been and is a deep concern of the American Legion.

"Accordingly, I am calling upon each of our 532 Posts throughout the State of California to enlist its membership particularly during Public Schools Week for a vigorous campaign in promoting the continued improvement and service of these centers of citizenship buillers."

REVIEW OF BASKETBALL SEASON NOT SO GOOD

With basketball season for Nevada City high at an end, it is interesting to survey this season's record, though not as enjoyable as a survey of the football season. Nevada City's A squad started the season strong by defending Wheatland and Lincoln, but out of the eight contests which followed ,only one more victory was chalked up, that being against the Grass Valley quintet.

The local A squad scored 230 points in all against 292 by the opponents. This total does not include games outside of inter-school meetings.

The Yellowjackets B's came through a winless season, winding up with their best game, played against Grant Union and lost by one point. The locals scored 196 points against 327 by their opponents.

GOOD SERVICE COSTS NO MORE

A modern establishment—a trained, intelligent and courteous personnel — distinctive motor equipment and other evidences of progress and prosperity are NOT an indication that funeral service charges will be high. A successful concern can be built only by serving honestly and well, at prices that are fair and reasonable.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Kidnaping Laws.

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.—Do you remember the feverish, the almost hysterical eagerness to make kidnaping a capital offense which swept legislature on legislature—Missouri and California and other states besides—after the Lindbergh baby was stolen? You must remember; it wasn't long ago.

And now will some bright little boy or girl tell the rest of the class just how many kidnapers, who were tried, convicted and condemned under these laws, have been legally put to death since then?

Irvin S. Cobb

And does anyone seriously believe that anywhere in the Union, Bruno Hauptmann would today stand appreciably closer to the electric chair, had not child-murder been added to the other hideous crime of child-stealing?

We're a great people for laws—not for enforcing laws; dearie me, no, we're much too tender-hearted for that rough stuff—but just for having nice ornamental laws on the statute books.

Let's see how many more we enact before the spring thaw comes.

Old "Uncle Wilbur"

SO THE ex-kaiser is getting on toward eighty. It seems only yesterday when I was one of three American correspondents with the invading German forces in 1914. Among ourselves we wanted to be able to refer freely to our imperial host without giving offense to anybody in his army. So we twisted Emperor Wilhelm Hohenzollern into "Uncle Wilbur Hennebury of Chambersburg, Pa.," and went about speaking of him as one to whom we were indebted for diverse favors but whose policies and methods frequently were open to criticism.

To the world today he's the woodchopper of Doorn; to the suppressed royalists of the Vaterland he's still, I suppose, the all-highest. But so long as I can remember those mad days in Belgium and France, he'll be "Uncle Wilbur," a good fellow while he had it.

Maybe if he hadn't figured his divine right was better than the devastating left hook of world opinion he might still be the all-ages heavyweight champion of European royalty. And there might be more European royalty than there is.

Reviving the Old

I WALKED into a beer parlor today, but, if that was the parlor, I'd hate to visit the pantry—and there in front of the mirror was an old friend—a friend I hadn't seen for full thirty years. It was a framed sign reading as follows: "Don't ask us to charge. The Light Brigade charged and look at what happened to them."

Now then, if I could only run across the one which says: "All Nations welcome except Carrie Nation," and a free lunch counter featuring whole pickled pigs-feet.

Wrestling As an Art

EVERY time I go to a so-called wrestling contest, I say to myself that, if only we revived the ancient Roman sport of matching gladiators to murder one another publicly, no building anywhere could hold the multitudes that would flock to the blood-lettings.

It can't be the posing, posturing, cheap acting, deliberate fouling, obvious hippodroming, the fixed victories and the faked defeats that bring the crowds swarming about the mastodonic masters of the manly art of self-pretense, these blubber-laden practitioners of the pleasant science of mayhem.

All the cruel agony can't be make-believe, all the seeming suffering isn't rehearsed beforehand. That's what makes the business pay. The creak of the dislocated ankle and the brisk snap of the splintering knee-joint, the scream as a brutal thumb gouges at a tortured eyeball—it's so much music to the popular ear.

That reminds me I must see about getting my tickets for this week's bouts. I hear the house is sold out. That's no way to treat a regular customer.

Stifling the Urge

IT'S almost time for the master tailors to announce that this year men will wear bright colors. They do that regularly and nothing ever comes of it except vain longings for us, poor cowardly worms that we are. Being a race of 'fraid-cats, we'll go right on encasing ourselves in garments suitable for pallbearers at a Dunkard funeral.

I'm typical of the whole thwarted male species. My impulse is to go pick out something suitable for a fancy vest and then have a whole suit made of it. Right now I've got my eye on a nobby checked pattern in black and white squares that would make me look a good deal like a marble-tiled entry hall. But will I indulge my stifled natural cravings? Don't make me laugh!

It's not one another's scorn we fear. It's our womenfolk. Well, if you were a hen and the poor foolish rooster had surrendered to you all his gay feathers, alwong with most of his other perquisites, would you give 'em back to him?
